In this talk we will introduce the basic definitions and tools for understanding One-dimensional Stochastic Differential Equations. We will discuss well-posedness, the scale function, the speed measure, hitting times, and Feller’s Test: the definitive characterization of explosion for these equations. Relevant examples will be shown to motivate. If time permits, we will introduce Feller’s boundary classification.