- Daniel is extremely experienced with the material, and did a great job breaking down homework problems into smaller manageable steps. I probably wouldn't have survived the class if it weren't for his help. He's one of the TA's in the math department who is intelligent yet doesn't have an attitude, which made him more approachable to students. However, the discussions can go a little slow, because he's always asking students how they think the problem should continue.
- Thank you for your notes every week! They were very clear and helpful. I also appreciate the time you took to grade the weekly assignments, and learned a lot from your comments.
